

A WORLD LEADER IN ARTISTIC EDUCATION

For more than a century, The Juilliard School in New York City has trained some of the most gifted musicians, dancers, actors, and playwrights from around the world, setting the gold standard in performing arts education.

Its impressive alumni list reads like a Who's Who of Broadway, Hollywood, and beyond. Kevin Kline and Patti LuPone were members of the renowned Drama Division's inaugural class in 1968, with Viola Davis, Robin Williams, Downton Abbey's Elizabeth McGovern, and many others following in their footsteps. Music greats like Miles Davis, Renée Fleming, Marvin Hamlisch and Yo-Yo Ma honed their craft at Juilliard. Robert Battle, Pina Bausch, and Paul Taylor jetted to artistic excellence in Juilliard's prestigious dance program.

Treasures of New York: The Juilliard School traces Juilliard's remarkable history, from its founding in 1905 by Frank Damrosch as the Institute of Musical Art, to the impact of Juilliard President Joseph Polisi, who, during his 34-year tenure, incorporated liberal arts courses into the curriculum, created Juilliard Jazz, and expanded the institution globally with a branch campus in Tianjin, China. His "artist as citizen" ethos is seen through outreach programs that bring students into schools, hospitals, homeless shelters and other places where they can make a difference through their art.

The film also invites viewers inside the conservatory's classrooms and rehearsal studios for a rare, behind-the-scenes look at classes taught by Wynton Marsalis, Director of Juilliard Jazz, and Alan Gilbert, former Director of Conducting and Orchestral Studies and former New York Philharmonic Music Director.

"One of the pleasures of Juilliard is walking down the hallway and hearing a pianist play for a dance class, hearing the percussion ensemble or a tuba player practicing in the practice room, and an actor vocalizing, preparing for their Shakespeare class," Ara Guzelimian, Provost and Dean of Juilliard, says in the film. "And in that lovely din is the vitality afoot in this place."

BALANCED DEBATE, MEANINGFUL DISCOURSE

Margaret Hoover — author, activist and political commentator — launches Firing Line with Margaret Hoover, bringing together the brightest minds from across the political spectrum to engage in a contest of ideas about important issues confronting the nation.

"Our mission is to renew the tradition of Firing Line for a new generation, offering a rigorous exchange of opinion with fresh voices addressing the challenges facing our democracy," Hoover explained.

Firing Line offers viewers an opportunity to engage in a 21st century debate about American news and issues. Complementing the show is archival footage from the original Firing Line series with William F. Buckley, which broadcast more than 1,500 episodes during its memorable 33-year run.
